BOOKS with Chris Jull

Writing a thriller can be a challenge.

Some work well and others, not so well. Nelson Demille's "The maze" reads like some sort of romance for the first 150 pages, before any real action.

On the other hand Lee Child's "No plan B " has Reacher smashing a jerk into a brick wall. Lots of action before page 19.

Ace Atkins captures your attention and holds the reader through a mystery and through the investigation. Not at the breakneck pace of Child, but an involving story.

On an other beat, we have Stephen Hunter. His stories involve a family of snipers, and a criminal element to sort out. Hunter's stories grab you and won't let go.

The Library has many of these immortals and lots of work by Ace Atkins and David Lagercrantz . They have several titles by all of these authors. Happy reading!
